

The heatmap displays a grid of values with a color scale from dark purple (low) to bright yellow (high). The top row features several bright yellow and light green cells, indicating high values. The middle rows show a mix of green and teal cells. The bottom row is predominantly dark purple, indicating low values. The overall pattern suggests a gradient or distribution of values across the grid.

(t, k)